Riga in Hands of Revolutionists Bombarded by Czar's Troops and Set on Fire. Desperate Fighting in Other Cities of the Baltic Provinces---Rebels May Have Captured Government Treasure.

ST. PETERSBURG, via Eydtkuhnen, Dec. 18.—A train bearing 120,000,000 roubles ($60,000,000), which should have arrived here at 11 o'clock Saturday night, has not yet reached the city. Although it is guarded by a strong military patrol, it is feared that it has been captured by the revolutionists.

EYDTKUHNNEN, Dec. 18.—The guards on the St. Petersburg express which arrived this morning state that the troops at Riga have gone over to the rebels. The town is being bombarded, and is afire in many places.

The St. Petersburg train brought here more than 200 refugees, all well-to-do people, who are fleeing from St. Petersburg. Everywhere along the line from St. Petersburg to this city the passengers on the train saw fires burning.

BERLIN, Dec. 18.—Dispatches brought by couriers from the frontier of the Baltic provinces of Russia state that the rebels destroyed a military train which was carrying reinforcements of troops from Riga to Orel. Over 200 Cossacks were killed outright, and 400 others were terribly injured, their bodies in many instances being horribly mutilated.

Other dispatches brought in the same way give some figures on the casualties reported to have occurred in the Baltic provinces as follows: At Riga, 700 killed and 400 wounded; Motan, 300 killed and 400 wounded; Dorpat, 150 killed and 400 wounded; Shavly, 50 killed and many wounded; Wenden, 40 killed and over 200 wounded; Wolmar, 200 killed and 100 wounded.

Whole Nation Under Martial Law.

ST. PETERSBURG, Dec. 18, via Eydtkuhnen, Dec. 18.—This city today is like an armed camp. Troops are visible at many points and strong patrols are stationed everywhere. During the night just closed, huge carriages, drawn by four horses each, were seen passing through all the streets carrying prisoners to the prisons and the fortresses.

All Russia has been practically proclaimed in a state of siege and under martial law. The imperial ukase, it is declared, clothes the military with the authority to arrest the entire population. The people fear a reign of the "White Terror."

The general strike has been declared to begin at once. It means the revolution—the organized uprising against the nation. Hence the Czar's ukase of repression. It is his last resort.

Czar Fears Assassination.

Premier Witte is being guarded from assassins. His diemshel is expected at any moment. He has failed utterly. General Count Alexei Ignatieff, leader of the reactionaries and the terror of the Russian people, is ready to take hold.

The Czar, in fear of assassination, is personally appealing to the Guard regiments to fire their loyalty. The revolt in the Baltic provinces and the interior is spreading rapidly, and is already beyond control.

Troops are in open mutiny in the Czar's capital and in Moscow. An awful rell of bloodshed prevails in the Harbin district and neighboring provinces. At Poytoler nine persons were killed; at Lijang, 100 persons were killed; at the far end of the province of Alexandrovsk, including women and children were publicly hanged. Hundreds of peasants with mutilated bodies, their in-

AMALGAMATED SLUMPS 7 POINTS AT OPENING

LAWSON SCORES HEAVILY ON "THE SYSTEM" IN GREAT STOCK EXCHANGE BATTLE.

With a 7½ point slump in opening transactions of 11,000 shares, over Saturday's decline for Amalgamated, the Stock Exchange battle between Thomas W. Lawson and "the system" was renewed again today.

The first record on tape was a trade of 100 shares at par. Selling orders followed with a rush, the next quotation being at 27. Then quotations were lost in the scramble, but when the opening skirmish was over, 107½ had been made, against the 11,000 shares had changed hands.

Immediately the Standard Oil interests rushed their reserves to the struggle. Big buying orders came in, the stock was forced up slowly to 30½ and later to 31½. Then the Standard Oil interests named for 31½.

Lawson scores heavily, that he is not broke; that he has the assistance of enough millionaires to cover his expenses; and that copper metal is going down, down.

In view of the trouble, if the village were over 100,000, had been made, against the 11,000 shares had changed hands. Immediately the Standard Oil interests rushed their reserves to the struggle. Big buying orders came in, the stock was forced up slowly to 30½ and later to 31½. Then the Standard Oil interests named for 31½.

FORMER CHORUS GIRL, BAKED BY MILLIONS, FIGHTS FOR SOCIAL LIFE

Evelyn Nesbit, the Wife of Harry Thaw, Now Winning War With "Haughty Dames."

Pittsburg "Tea Table" Contest Involves Leaders in a Merry Whirl.

PITTSBURG, Dec. 18.—Evelyn Nesbit Thaw, the former chorus girl and actress who wed Harry K. Thaw, has cleared through against certain haughty dames in Pittsburg society, who are vainly trying to force her out.

Backed by her mother-in-law, Mrs. William Thaw, she has been making a clever and winning effort for social recognition. Now that she is gaining in the "tea table" fight," as the Pittsburg citizens jokingly call it, she is keeping strict tabs, in her every household, of the women who have persistently snubbed her, on the ground that she was not of their circle.

Just as Mrs. Thaw's friends say that there is to be a long reckoning between the former chorus girl and her social opponents, her own winning nature, her mother-in-law's diplomacy and the siege of the Thaw millions are all in her favor, and it is declared that many Pittsburg women will feel the sting when they give the cold shoulder to the new bride.

Call It "Tea-Table Fight."

The men at best, those who are not drawn into this "tea-table" fight through family connection—sympathize evenly with the former chorus girl and her mother-in-law. They are not so ready to snub her as the women of the city, who are posted through the papers on this little battle. As for Mrs. Thaw's side, they always did like Evelyn Nesbit as an actress. And later, when they saw her "land a millionnaire," as they style her, they could not help but sympathize with her.

The great mass of people in the city, who are posted through the papers on this little battle, As for Mrs. Thaw's side, they always did like Evelyn Nesbit as an actress. And later, when they saw her "land a millionnaire," as they style her, they could not help but sympathize with her.

Snub by Pastor.

Then there is the episode of Pastor Moore of Mrs. Thaw's church, who performed the Thaw marriage. The elder Mrs. Thaw has been a staunch supporter of the church. But, when she, as the story goes, suggested that there be a double reception for her new daughter-in-law and the bride whom Pastor Moore had just taken for himself, the proposition was not favored by Pastor Moore.

Young Mrs. Thaw herself will surely, rightly. She was about the most radiant beautiful woman at the reception to Mrs. Thaw's church, given to her mother-in-law. Then, at the time of her wedding a few days later, when she was escorted to the altar by her father, young Mrs. Thaw was snubbed by all the guests.

It is said that the pastor, in a talk, told her, "Young Mrs. Thaw, will you do me the favor to be seated in the front row, so that they won't see her at all."

MRS. HARRY K. THAW, SNUBBED BY SOCIETY.

FOUGHT FIRE ON STORM TOSSED DYNAMITE SHIP

Steamer Arranmore Creeps Into Port with the Strength of a Brave Crew Spent.

Threatened every minute with absolute destruction from high explosives, the crew desperately fighting a fire in her hold which promised to eat its way from stem to stern, towed as if a toy boat by monstrous waves, blown about as if she had been a feather on the high seas by a gale, exploded in its fury, with her mainmast burned and bruised from her terrible battle of smothering the flames, the Puritan line steamship Arranmore, 2,000 tons burden, arrived in Boston from Antwerp.

On December 2, the Arranmore came into the teeth of a gale, this grew in proportion until it became a hurricane, and the big ship rolled and tossed as if she were an eggshell.

But there were other fears. Stowed on the lower deck were tons of the highest explosive. Should the fire and jar of the ship, or the heavy pitching and rolling, could prevent the ship's being towed to stone, while pitching and tossing almost as if she were a feather on the high seas by a gale, exploded in its fury, with her mainmast burned and bruised from her terrible battle of smothering the flames, the Puritan line steamship Arranmore, 2,000 tons burden, arrived in Boston from Antwerp.

Cigars for Christmas

Buy Your Cigars At a Cigar Store

You don't go to a hardware store for silk. You don't go to a grocery for diamonds. When you want anything that requires special knowledge or special skill for its handling, you go to the man or the store that makes a specialty of that thing.

There isn't a line of business known to the world of commerce in which special knowledge and undivided, concentrated effort are more important than in the cigar business. It isn't a business that can be taken up as a "side issue." We are cigar specialists. We have no thought, plan, interest or energy that is unconnected with the work of giving our public.

BETTER CIGARS FOR LESS MONEY

We have the largest organization ever brought together in the history of cigar retailing and the greatest business ever known since cigar-selling began. Of course we can give better values and better service. Here are some of the values—
